

ARTICLE APPEARED
ON PAGE 40

BALTIMORE SUN
17 July 1984

BRITAIN

Anti-spy chief was a spy himself, expert thinks

Sir Roger Hollis, Britain's counterespionage chief from 1956 to 1965, was almost certainly a Soviet spy, according to the man who investigated him.

The allegation by former spy-catcher Peter Wright, made in a television program shown last night, contradicts a statement to Parliament by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in March, 1981, in which she effectively cleared Sir Roger.